Choose How Your Death Benefit is Paid

Purchasing life insurance to protect your loved ones can help ensure their specific needs are met, even after you're gone.

We understand being concerned about helping your loved ones maintain a source of income. That's why we're proud to offer the Income Provider Option—a feature that lets you choose how your life insurance policy's death benefit is paid.

Income Provider Option

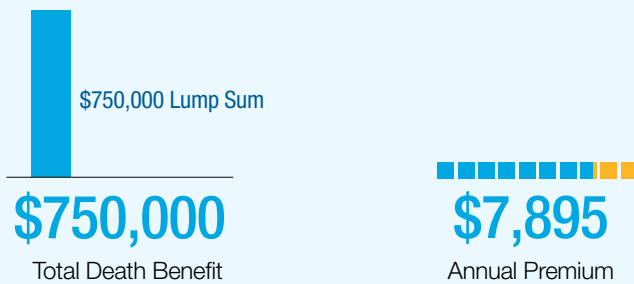

Available with select Protective Life policies at no extra cost, the Income Provider Option can be a potential solution for meeting the income needs of your loved ones. This optional benefit allows you to choose the amount and duration of death benefit payments—giving you flexibility to address your intentions and concerns.

It offers the opportunity for you to influence the future financial welfare and interests of your loved ones by allowing you to structure payments with them in mind. You can set up regular, recurring payments for your beneficiaries, or a combination of an initial lump-sum payout and recurring income payments.

The Income Provider Option is available at no extra cost and gives you more flexibility and control over your death benefit. You choose the structure that best meets your needs.

Option 1 - Just the Basics

This is the premium and total death benefit for a lump-sum death benefit policy

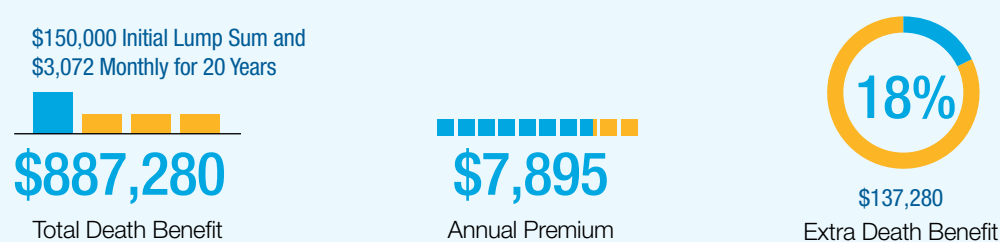

Option 2 - Minimize My Cost

Adding the Income Provider Option could result in the same total death benefit payments at a much lower premium

Option 3 - Maximize My Benefit

By adding the Income Provider Option and choosing to pay the same annual premium as a lump-sum death benefit policy, total death benefit payments could increase by 18%

Effective as of January 2019. Assumes male age 50, preferred with level premiums paid to age 105 on a Protective Advantage Choice UL policy.

A portion of each annual payment will be reported as taxable income to the beneficiary, based on our understanding of current federal income tax law. Neither Protective Life Insurance Company nor its representatives offer legal or tax advice. The tax treatment of life insurance is subject to change. Consumers should consult their legal or tax advisor before making any tax-related decisions.

Meeting Income Needs

The typical life insurance policy death benefit is paid in one lump sum. That might help to meet immediate and short-term financial needs, but may not be the best option for others who need help covering periodic and ongoing expenses.

Financial Needs can Typically be Divided into Three Basic Categories:

Immediate Needs

When someone passes away, there are immediate income needs like:

- Funeral, burial and probate expenses
- Credit card debt
- Mortgage and auto loans

Recurring Needs

There are also regular household needs and expenses for any surviving spouse and children. These might include things like:

- Utilities and food
- Healthcare
- Childcare

Future Needs

Some expenses will come at a much later date:

- College tuition
- Retirement

CONSIDER THIS EXAMPLE: Family Protection

Michael and His Wife Kate Have Three Young Daughters in Elementary School

He is worried about helping his family pay for his funeral expenses, and making sure his wife can afford to take leave from her job if he passes away unexpectedly. But Michael also wants to be certain that his wife and children would have guaranteed income to help with normal, ongoing household expenses.

Michael talks to his insurance professional and decides to purchase a Protective Life universal life insurance policy and adds the no-cost Income Provider Option with an initial lump-sum payment and monthly income stream payments for 20 years.

When Michael dies, the initial lump-sum payment will help cover funeral expenses and temporarily replace his wife's income until she can return to work. The monthly payments can then go towards the family's regular expenses in the 20 years following Michael's death.

Leaving a Legacy

Some people might want to use life insurance to provide a lasting reminder or legacy for their surviving loved ones. It is always nice to be remembered, and life insurance can make it possible to continue giving gifts for your loved ones on birthdays, holidays or other special occasions.

CONSIDER THIS EXAMPLE:

A Gift From Grandma

Ellen Is a 65-year-old Retired Widow With Three Young Grandchildren

She wants her grandchildren to receive and experience everything that she envisions for them in life. Ellen has been searching for a way to help her grandchildren remember her fondly for years to come, even after she's gone.

After talking to her insurance professional, Ellen purchases a universal life insurance policy from Protective Life, and adds the Income Provider Option so each grandchild will receive annual income stream payments. The Income Provider Option also allows her to specify the exact date payments are made to each grandchild.

With life insurance and the Income Provider Option, Ellen can ensure that her memory lives on through annual gifts to each of her grandchildren on their birthdays.

This case study is hypothetical and for illustrative purposes only. Each individual situation will be different based on the age, sex and health status of the insured.

Your Next Steps

Choose the Income Provider Option when you purchase a select life insurance policy from Protective Life.

Decide How Your Death Benefit Will Be Paid

BENEFIT PERIOD

You can choose a benefit period from 1 to 30 years

PAYMENT TYPE

You can select a lump-sum payment, regular income stream benefit payments or a combination of both

PAYMENT SCHEDULE

Benefit payments can be made monthly, annually or on a specific day each year, such as birthdays or holidays

DISTRIBUTION

You can even have the benefit amount distributed to multiple beneficiaries, either equally or divided as you choose

With the Income Provider Option, your wishes will be carried out exactly as desired. You even have the flexibility to change the benefit payment schedule if needs or plans change, but your beneficiaries may not change the plan after your death.

Purchasing life insurance is an important step in protecting and providing for your loved ones. But you should also consider how losing your income would affect them and their lifestyle.

With the no-cost Income Provider Option from Protective Life, you maintain the control and flexibility to decide how and when your life insurance policy's death benefit is paid.

The Protective Way

Delivering what's promised. 100 years and counting.

Other companies talk about values. But with us it's more than a slogan. In fact, our core principles—value, integrity and strength and stability—inform everything we do, from our business model to the design of our products.

Simply put, we believe in doing the right thing in every action and decision, large and small. We're careful about the promises we make—and make sure we deliver on them. It's how we continue to build trust and relationships that last.
